MICHAEL SIMMS

ACT SENATE CANDIDATE 2022

Born in Tasmania and brought up in Wollongong, his mother is a nurse with over 45 years' experience and he is the father of an amazing 12-year-old son on the autism spectrum.

Michael was a small business operator and youth worker until, by chance, he found his calling in the disability sector, where he has been employed as a support worker and coordinator for 17 years. Due to his experience and knowledge in the field, Michael is very passionate about making sure the most vulnerable people in our community get the help and services they need to live a fulfilling life, and making sure the NDIS works as well as it should.

Michael is also very passionate about the youth of today and will strive to put more avenues in place to support school leavers and people who struggle at school, in order to give them the maximum opportunity to succeed in life.

"No current politician is listening to the people, to small business, to lower income earners and to our First Nations people. It's as though our current politicians have never lived a day in the real world of an Australian. They are not aware and they don't care to listen to our everyday concerns."
